

ABSTRACT

Applicator devices and methods for applying an oral composition to a mouth of a user are disclosed. The applicator device for applying a composition contains a body configured to receive the composition. An applicator surface coupled to the 5 body receives the composition from the composition containment member. The surface of the applicator is movable between a storage position and a use position by an activator coupled to the applicator surface.